WASHINGTON, April 23.

...ANAGER BOUTWELL'S ARGUMENT.

...ager Boutwell finished his argument at 1 ...o-day, and, after a recess, Mr. Nelson ...menced the opening argument in behalf ...f the most ludicrous speeches ever delivered ...n the Senate. It was unaware of the ...ct that Mr. Nelson was to succeed Mr. ...ield, and, in the effort upon Senators fully equal to a Dad Field speech, ...ade particular allusion to what should be ...ound on the matter or bearing of any ...anager. Judge Curtis and Black's counsel ...ought after several days' argument, Mr. ...elson at an early hour, but ...ed to the Senate Judiciary Committee ...ed to Judge Curtis, and Black's counsel ...ed to Mr. Evarts, Judge Curtis and Mr. ...elson. Judge Curtis and Black's counsel ...ought after several days' argument, Mr. ...elson at an early hour, but ...ed to the Senate Judiciary Committee ...ed to Judge Curtis, and Black's counsel ...ed to Mr. Evarts, Judge Curtis and Mr. ...elson.

...ELSON'S OPENING ARGUMENT FOR THE DEFENCE.

...elson's argument was directed to the ...ts of the case, and was a clear, logical ...ment, which, if the President was such a ...ild as he has been painted, that Mr. Nelson ...ould be a good counsel for him. If the President was such a ...ild as he has been painted, that Mr. Nelson ...ould be a good counsel for him
